6. IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR TELEPHONE SERVICE

The Fibre Up telephone service relies on powered network equipment.

Power outages

Your Fibre Up telephone service will not operate during a power outage if the equipment required to provide the service does not have power.

This may mean that you cannot use the service to call Triple Zero (000) during a power outage.

We strongly recommend that you maintain another means of making emergency calls, such as a charged mobile telephone.

Triple Zero and your address

You can call Triple Zero (000) using the Fibre Up telephone service when the service is operating.

It is important that Fibre Up has your correct service address because address information associated with your telephone service may be used during an emergency.

Please tell us promptly if your details change.

Priority Assistance

Priority Assistance is not available with the Fibre Up Voice Service. Customers who require Priority Assistance should contact a provider that offers this service, eg Telstra.

Customer Service Guarantee (CSG)

Fibre Up Voice Services are supplied subject to a Customer Service Guarantee Waiver. Customers must read and accept the Fibre Up Customer Service Guarantee Waiver before the Voice Service can be provided.

Existing telephone numbers

For services transferred from ENSA on 1 October 2026, Fibre Up expects your existing telephone number to remain unchanged.

7. CUSTOMER SERVICE GUARANTEE

Where the Telecommunications Customer Service Guarantee Standard applies to your telephone service, you retain the rights provided by that Standard.

Fibre Up does not require migrated customers to waive their Customer Service Guarantee rights as part of the transfer to Fibre Up.

Any proposed waiver would require a separate process and would only apply where permitted by law.

Foxtel services:

- are delivered using services and content supplied by Foxtel or its related providers;
- are subject to availability;

You may cancel your service by contacting Fibre Up.

10. CONNECTION AND EQUIPMENT

Existing Avington customers transferring from ENSA are expected to continue using the existing telecommunications infrastructure and compatible customer equipment.

If equipment needs to be replaced or additional work is requested, Fibre Up will tell you about any applicable charges before carrying out chargeable work.

Do not relocate, disconnect, modify or interfere with network equipment that Fibre Up or its service providers have identified as network equipment.
